2. elaborated two curricula:

First curriculum for a five-day-programme with the aim to motivated opinion-leaders and decision-makers to realized projects to protect cultural landscape. Basic information was given and a lot of best-practice-examples was shown – following the example of the international workshop in Austria in October 2006. The second curriculum for an – at least – 26-day training programme for managers and technical personal in tourism. This programme enabled the participants to develop and realize measures in tourism, which protect cultural landscape and allow economic benefits.

Environmental Management Austria organised an international meeting and an excursion for the project partners and other interested people from Oct. 12th to Oct. 15th 2006 in St. Pölten. This meeting counted 53 participants from Poland, Germany, Romania and Austria.

Therefore a programme for the meeting and excursion was worked out by conferring with the other project partners. This programme included excursions to the best-practice-examples and lectures to different topics, like energy efficiency and tourism.
